As the global effect of coronavirus (COVID-19) continues to evolve, Norco Trailers is firmly committed to the health and safety of our customers and employees. Providing our customers with the largest selection of the highest quality trailers at the most competitive prices while offering unbeatable customer service has always been our family business's main priority, and that has not changed during this uncertain season.

We still have a huge variety of our most popular trailer styles and sizes in stock and available at both of our SoCal stores. You can do the bulk of your trailer shopping with us online without even leaving home! Our current inventory with pictures and prices of every trailer is listed on our website, along with trailer brochures, financing information, warranty service appointment requests, and custom trailer quote request forms.

We are closely monitoring the changing situation, and complying with public health guidance. We've increased our protocols in sanitizing surfaces, including door handles, pens, and workstations where DMV paperwork is completed. Our entire trailer inventory is outside in the open air where the chances of spreading anything are much lower, and we are also maintaining social distance during trailer demonstrations with onsite customers.

We ask that anyone experiencing any symptoms please stay home and postpone trailer shopping until after making a full recovery for the safety of our employees and community as a whole.

Contact information for both of our stores is listed below:
